Students Can Give Too!
Support the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics Foundation

Serving on the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics Foundation the past two years has been a great experience. During my time serving as the Student Member on the ANDF Board of Directors I have learned what the Foundation means for students and how students can get more involved. One of the biggest things the Foundation is known for is their scholarships. Scholarship are available to students at any level in their degree and can help to support students achieve their career and educational goals. Additionally, the ANDF provides many resources for students, fellows, and scholars such as study materials, fellowship and internships opportunities on eatrightfoundation.org. Furthermore, the Foundation allows for students to hold campus fund raisers to raise awareness and support within their program and to give back to their chosen profession.

While serving on the board, I have made meaningful connections to other board members and spent quality time reviewing current ANDF initiatives and meaningful next steps for the future. My time serving with the Foundation has been a great experience and I hope to help other students realize all that the Foundation has to offer and continues to do for students in the nutrition and dietetics profession.

One of your first experiences as a member of the Academy might be attending your first FNCE®. The annual Foundation Gala at FNCE is a great way to learn more about the Foundation while having a great time with your classmates and colleagues!
